

COVID-19 PLAN

At Bayside, our customers come first so we wanted to let you know that it's business as usual and our everyday operations will continue unless we have to modify them. As a partner to you and your business, we too continue closely monitor the impacts of Coronavirus (COVID-19) and we strive to ensure the health and safety of our collective employees, customers and communities.

With more cases appearing globally, here within the US, and of course within our old North State, it is also undoubtedly going to reach us here in the Tri-County area as well. With more concern growing daily, we wanted to provide an update on our operations as well as share information that can help you navigate through the current uncertainty.

Bayside already has a business continuity plan across all three of our locations and if we have to implement our plan, we will be relying on options such as, working remotely and transferring work across other offices if required.

In the weeks ahead, we know that you will need Bayside to support you, your businesses, and your customers, and we will be there. As with many organizations trying to reduce in-person meetings and travel, the way in which we provide support may look different. Rest assured that your Bayside team has already planned for this and we are already prepared to use virtual ordering tools when appropriate, and we have developed a plan to limit non-essential in-person meetings in accordance with our states health and safety guidelines. We will continue to be available to you and your business via cell phones, text, and email or online as you need us - again but until we have to change, it's going to be business as usual.

Despite these potential operational changes, our purpose remains the same. Bayside is committed to delivering the products and electrical support you have come to rely upon us for.

Bayside and its employees are the experts you need when it comes to electrical supplies and distribution and given that we are a locally owned and operated business, we are uniquely positioned to help you and your business continue to flourish by staying one step ahead and being able to adapt quickly even during trying times - this is what allows us to serve you better than any other supply house.

As the leader in the electrical distribution segment here in our local market, Bayside remains fully committed and we feel it's our part in the community in which we live and work to continue supporting you and your company through these challenging times. We will continue to share periodic updates about our operational decisions as the situation continues to unfold.

Thank you for trusting us with your business, and please reach out to anyone on your Bayside team which includes Will and Chad with any questions.
